Birth of a Dream

The original Aurora Ice Hotel was built in the fall of 2003. It had a gothic cathedral architectural theme with vaulted arches and massive ice blocks. It opened in early January 2004 and was an instant success. It was built by using an insulated exoskeleton over the ice structure and embedding refrigeration tubing into the ice walls. In June 2004 the first Ice Hotel was lost to Fairbanks' 24 hour daylight and warm temperatures. The existing Aurora Ice Museum was built in the fall of 2004 and remains today in all its glory.

Steve Brice – National Ice Carving Association Certified Master Ice Carver and 16 time World Champion

Originally a stone and bronze sculptor, Steve started his career in ice sculpture in 1990, since then Steve has won 14 Gold Medals in Fairbanks Alaska's World Ice Art Championships. He has traveled world wide for exhibitions and competitions. Steve has won 3 consecutive United States Olympic Ice Sculpting Trials where he has represented the United States in Nagano Japan 1998, Salt Lake City, Utah 2002, and Turino, Italy 2006. Steve is the Creator, Designer, and Lead Artist of the Aurora Ice Museum. He also teaches Ice Sculpting to all levels of sculptors, creates sculptures in Bronze, and is an inventor, creating tools for the ice sculpting trade, many used by sculptors world wide. He and his wife Heather live in Fairbanks, Alaska with their 3 children and operate Brice and Brice Ice Sculptures. stevebrice.net

Heather Brice – 6 time World Champion

Number of guests 0-35 $500, 36-100 $750, 101-150 $1,000. Faux-fur mink capes are available in black for the groom or white for the bride for an additional $50 rental fee.

Chena Absorption Refrigeration System

The Aurora Ice Museum stays "on ice" year-round by using our hot water resources. We teamed up with Energy Concepts to design and build a two-stage ammonia absorption refrigeration system to meet our needs—the first system of its kind in the world using geothermal heat! Free daily 2pm geothermal tours are available for anyone interested in learning more about the Resort's renewable energy projects.
